

EXHIBITIONS

Here Are 24 New York Gallery Shows That You Need to See This October

Another month of great gallery shows in New York.

Sarah Cascone, October 4, 2017

Robert Natkin's Untitled (Hitchcock) (1988). Courtesy of the artist and Hirsch & Adler Gallery.

4. “Robert Natkin: And the Days Are Not Full Enough” at Hirsch & Adler Modern

This show traces the arc of painter Robert Natkin, a colorist who moved fluidly between improvisational expression and more defined geometrical compositions indebted to artists like Paul Klee and Mondrian. Describing him as the “author of a dabbled infinite,” this thorough view of Natkin’s work highlights the full range of his abilities in the Post-war art scene.

The Crown Building, 730 Fifth Avenue, 4th floor, October 5–November 11; opening reception, 6 p.m.–8 p.m.